

Sunday Herald Sun
body+ soul
bodyandsoul.com.au
october 23 2011

WHAT'S YOUR HEALTH
IQ?

*The body basics
smart women
get wrong*

5
SMALL CHANGES
THAT LEAD TO BIG
WEIGHT LOSS

FROM COUCH
POTATOES TO TRIATHLETES

+ THE NO-SCAR BREAST-REDUCTION SURGERY

TEST YOUR HEALTH IQ

We all think we know the basics of wellbeing, but when was the last time you tested your knowledge? By Charmaine Yabsley

How large should a portion size be?

✦ Australians are a bit clueless on this topic. A recent Choice survey found when it came to breakfast cereals, for example, men pour 49 per cent more and women 26 per cent more than the recommended serving sizes.

"If you want to maintain your current weight, there are two rules for serving sizes," says dietitian Amanda Clark, author of Portion Perfection (Great Ideas in Nutrition) and creator of Portion Perfection plates and bowls. "A serving of meat should be about the size of your hand. Carbohydrate servings should be the size of a tennis ball."

And don't think you can heap

on the vegies either. "This is ideally about two tennis ball sizes," Clark says.

Even when eating healthily, restraint should be shown.

"Having too much healthy food, such as muesli, can cause weight gain," she adds.

For women, a serving of muesli should be one third of a cup, but Clark says we tend to overfill large bowls. Invest in a portion plate which guides you to the exact serving sizes required.

How much sleep should you get?

✦ Eight hours is the common answer to this question, though not all of us need this much. And yet, 51 per cent of us say we don't get enough sleep. It seems our sleep needs are as individual as we are.

"Sleep needs varies between individuals just as any other biological characteristic, such as height, weight and eye colour," says Professor Leon Lack of The Sleep Research Laboratory at Flinders University. "Sleep 'need' varies across age from an average of about nine to 10 hours in children and eight to nine in adolescents. As we get older our sleep requirements decline, from needing seven to eight hours in middle age, to just six to seven hours in the older population." However many hours you're getting, it's the quality that's important.

"The first few hours are the most effective at satisfying sleep needs, while the last hour or two are less so," Professor Lack says.

What's the best way to lose weight?

✦ This might depend on whether you're a nutritionist or a personal trainer, but according to the National Health and Medical Research Council both exercise and eating less work. It's finding the balance that's vital.

"The way to lose weight is either to use more energy [calories] each day through physical activity or to reduce your energy [calorie] intake each day by eating less," says dietitian Clare Evangelista. "We get calories from the protein, fat and carbohydrate in our foods, so cutting down on some or all of these is necessary to lose weight. However, fat provides us with the most calories per gram, so is often seen as the most efficient way to cut back on your calorie intake."

Choose reduced-fat dairy products, use only a thin spread of margarine on bread and crackers, trim the fat and skin off meat and chicken and avoid fatty takeaways and other high-fat treats. "We still need to keep small amounts of good unsaturated fats such as vegetable oil, nuts and margarine in our regular diet to keep cholesterol in check."

When's the best time of the month to conceive?

✦ According to a recent Monash University study, only 13 per cent of women know

How much fruit and veg should you eat each day?

+ Are you grouping vegies and fruit together? The recommended amount is five pieces of veg and two pieces of fruit each day.

"Boost your vegie intake by adding salad to sandwiches, vegetables to your evening meal or including crudites, baked beans, vegetable soup or corn on the cob at snack time," Evangelista says.

the correct answer to this question. "If a woman has a regular 28-day cycle, as 90 per cent of women do, ovulation occurs between day 13 and 14," explains Professor Michael Chapman of the Fertility Society of Australia.

"We recommend having sex on alternate days between day 12 and day 16 of your cycle. Sperm hangs around for 72 hours and an egg is fertilisable for 12 hours, so try to overlap these times. It's more difficult to predict a fertile time if your cycle is more or less than 28 days."

Ovulation kits may be helpful in this case.

What is the maximum amount of alcohol you should drink?

+ Two is the maximum daily amount for both men and women, but only a quarter of the drinking population follows this rule, according to a recent Roy Morgan survey.

"Old advice used to be that women could drink up to two standard drinks per day and men could have up to four per day, provided we all have two alcohol-free days per week," Evangelista says.

The new guidelines recommend no more than two standard drinks per day for both men and women and no longer emphasise alcohol-free days to the same extent.

"It's also not considered healthy to have more than four standard drinks on a single occasion and for women who are pregnant or breastfeeding, abstinence is the safest choice," Evangelista says.

bodyandsoul.com.au

We answer four more common health questions at bodyandsoul.com.au

How much water should you drink?

+ Good news for the three in 10 people who don't drink eight glasses of water a day – that recommendation has now been called into question. According to a study published in the Journal Of The American Society Of Nephrology, the benefits of drinking that much water – better skin, hydration, weight management and detoxification – are unproven, but don't stop drinking your eight glasses just yet. Most experts still recommend drinking plenty of water.

PHOTOGRAPHY FOLIO ©

+ Did you know? There is no correlation between cracking your knuckles and developing arthritis or joint inflammation in later life.

Sunday Herald Sun
body+ soul
bodyandsoul.com.au
october 23 2011

WHAT'S YOUR HEALTH
IQ?

*The body basics
smart women
get wrong*

5
SMALL CHANGES
THAT LEAD TO BIG
WEIGHT LOSS

FROM COUCH
POTATOES TO TRIATHLETES

+ THE NO-SCAR BREAST-REDUCTION SURGERY

TEST YOUR HEALTH IQ

We all think we know the basics of wellbeing, but when was the last time you tested your knowledge? By Charmaine Yabsley

How large should a portion size be?

✦ Australians are a bit clueless on this topic. A recent Choice survey found when it came to breakfast cereals, for example, men pour 49 per cent more and women 26 per cent more than the recommended serving sizes. "If you want to maintain your current weight, there are two rules for serving sizes," says dietitian Amanda Clark, author of Portion Perfection (Great Ideas in Nutrition) and creator of Portion Perfection plates and bowls. "A serving of meat should be about the size of your hand. Carbohydrate servings should be the size of a tennis ball."

And don't think you can heap on the vegies either. "This is ideally about two tennis ball sizes," Clark says.

Even when eating healthily, restraint should be shown. "Having too much healthy food, such as muesli, can cause weight gain," she adds. For women, a serving of muesli should be one third of a cup, but Clark says we tend to overfill large bowls. Invest in a portion plate which guides you to the exact serving sizes required.

How much sleep should you get?

✦ Eight hours is the common answer to this question, though not all of us need this much. And yet, 51 per cent of us say we don't get enough sleep. It seems our sleep needs are as individual as we are.

"Sleep needs varies between individuals just as any other biological characteristic, such as height, weight and eye colour," says Professor Leon Lack of The Sleep Research Laboratory at Flinders University. "Sleep 'need' varies across age from an average of about nine to 10 hours in children and eight to nine in adolescents. As we get older our sleep requirements decline, from needing seven to eight hours in middle age, to just six to seven hours in the older population." However many hours you're getting, it's the quality that's important.

How much water should you drink?

✦ Good news for the three in 10 people who don't drink eight glasses of water a day – that recommendation has now been called into question. According to a study published in the Journal Of The American Society Of Nephrology, the benefits of drinking that much water – better skin, hydration, weight management and detoxification – are unproven, but don't stop drinking your eight glasses just yet. Most experts still recommend drinking plenty of water.

Did you know? There is no correlation between cracking your knuckles and developing arthritis or joint inflammation in later life.

"The first few hours are the most effective at satisfying sleep needs, while the last hour or two are less so," Professor Lack says.

What's the best way to lose weight?

✦ This might depend on whether you're a nutritionist or a personal trainer, but according to the National Health and Medical Research Council both exercise and eating less work. It's finding the balance that's vital.

"The way to lose weight is either to use more energy [calories] each day through physical activity or to reduce your energy [calorie] intake each day by eating less," says dietitian Clare Evangelista. "We get calories from the protein, fat and carbohydrate in our foods, so cutting down on some or all of these is necessary to lose weight. However, fat provides us with the most calories per gram, so is often seen as the most efficient way to cut back on your calorie intake."

Choose reduced-fat dairy products, use only a thin spread of margarine on bread and crackers, trim the fat and skin off meat and chicken and avoid fatty takeaways and other high-fat treats. "We still need to keep small amounts of good unsaturated fats such as vegetable oil, nuts and margarine in our regular diet to keep cholesterol in check."

When's the best time of the month to conceive?

✦ According to a recent Monash University study, only 13 per cent of women know

How much fruit and veg should you eat each day?

✦ Are you grouping veggies and fruit together? The recommended amount is five pieces of veg and two pieces of fruit each day.

"Boost your veggie intake by adding salad to sandwiches, vegetables to your evening meal or including crudites, baked beans, vegetable soup or corn on the cob at snack time," Evangelista says.

the correct answer to this question. "If a woman has a regular 28-day cycle, as 90 per cent of women do, ovulation occurs between day 13 and 14," explains Professor Michael Chapman of the Fertility Society of Australia.

"We recommend having sex on alternate days between day 12 and day 18 of your cycle. Sperm hangs around for 72 hours and an egg is fertilisable for 12 hours, so try to overlap these times. It's more difficult to predict a fertile time if your cycle is more or less than 28 days."

Ovulation kits may be helpful in this case.

What is the maximum amount of alcohol you should drink?

✦ Two is the maximum daily amount for both men and women, but only a quarter of the drinking population follows this rule, according to a recent Roy Morgan survey.

"Old advice used to be that women could drink up to two standard drinks per day and men could have up to four per day, provided we all have two alcohol-free days per week," Evangelista says.

The new guidelines recommend no more than two standard drinks per day for both men and women and no longer emphasise alcohol-free days to the same extent.

"It's also not considered healthy to have more than four standard drinks on a single occasion and for women who are pregnant or breastfeeding, abstinence is the safest choice," Evangelista says. ●

bodyandsoul.com.au

✦ We answer four more common health questions at bodyandsoul.com.au

Sunday Mail october 23 2011
body+ soul
bodyandsoul.com.au

WHAT'S YOUR HEALTH
IQ?

*The body basics
smart women
get wrong*

5

SMALL CHANGES THAT LEAD TO BIG
WEIGHT LOSS

FROM COUCH
POTATOES TO TRIATHLETES

TEST YOUR HEALTH IQ

We all think we know the basics of wellbeing, but when was the last time you tested your knowledge? By Charmaine Yabsley

How large should a portion size be?

✦ Australians are a bit clueless on this topic. A recent Choice survey found when it came to breakfast cereals, for example, men pour 49 per cent more and women 26 per cent more than the recommended serving sizes.

"If you want to maintain your current weight, there are two rules for serving sizes," says dietitian Amanda Clark, author of Portion Perfection (Great Ideas in Nutrition) and creator of Portion Perfection plates and bowls. "A serving of meat should be about the size of your hand. Carbohydrate servings should be the size of a tennis ball."

And don't think you can heap on the vegies either. "This is ideally about two tennis ball sizes," Clark says.

Even when eating healthily, restraint should be shown.

"Having too much healthy

food, such as muesli, can cause weight gain," she adds.

For women, a serving of muesli should be one third of a cup, but Clark says we tend to overfill large bowls. Invest in a portion plate which guides you to the exact serving sizes required.

How much sleep should you get?

✦ Eight hours is the common answer to this question, though not all of us need this much. And yet, 51 per cent of us say we don't get enough sleep. It seems our sleep needs are as individual as we are.

"Sleep needs varies between individuals just as any other biological characteristic, such as height, weight and eye colour," says Professor Leon Lack of The Sleep Research Laboratory at Flinders University. "Sleep 'need' varies across age from an average of about nine to 10 hours in children and eight to nine in adolescents. As we get older our sleep requirements decline, from needing seven to eight hours in middle age, to just six to seven hours in the older population." However many hours you're getting, it's the quality that's important.

How much water should you drink?

✦ Good news for the three in 10 people who don't drink eight glasses of water a day – that recommendation has now been called into question. According to a study published in the Journal Of The American Society Of Nephrology, the benefits of drinking that much water – better skin, hydration, weight management and detoxification – are unproven, but don't stop drinking your eight glasses just yet. Most experts still recommend drinking plenty of water.

PHOTOGRAPHY FOCUS/ID

"The first few hours are the most effective at satisfying sleep needs, while the last hour or two are less so," Professor Lack says.

What's the best way to lose weight?

+ This might depend on whether you're a nutritionist or a personal trainer, but according to the National Health and Medical Research Council both exercise and eating less work. It's finding the balance that's vital.

"The way to lose weight is either to use more energy [calories] each day through physical activity or to reduce your energy [calorie] intake each day by eating less," says dietitian Clare Evangelista. "We get calories from the protein, fat and carbohydrate in our foods, so cutting down on some or all of these is necessary to lose weight. However, fat provides us with the most calories per gram, so is often seen as the most efficient way to cut back on your calorie intake."

Choose reduced-fat dairy products, use only a thin spread of margarine on bread and crackers, trim the fat and skin off meat and chicken and avoid fatty takeaways and other high-fat treats. "We still need to keep small amounts of good unsaturated fats such as vegetable oil, nuts and margarine in our regular diet to keep cholesterol in check."

When's the best time of the month to conceive?

+ According to a recent Monash University study, only 13 per cent of women know

How much fruit and veg should you eat each day?

+ Are you grouping vegies and fruit together? The recommended amount is five pieces of veg and two pieces of fruit each day.

"Boost your vegie intake by adding salad to sandwiches, vegetables to your evening meal or including crudites, baked beans, vegetable soup or corn on the cob at snack time," Evangelista says.

the correct answer to this question. "If a woman has a regular 28-day cycle, as 90 per cent of women do, ovulation occurs between day 13 and 14," explains Professor Michael Chapman of the Fertility Society of Australia.

"We recommend having sex on alternate days between day 12 and day 16 of your cycle. Sperm hangs around for 72 hours and an egg is fertilisable for 12 hours, so try to overlap these times. It's more difficult to predict a fertile time if your cycle is more or less than 28 days."

Ovulation kits may be helpful in this case.

What is the maximum amount of alcohol you should drink?

+ Two is the maximum daily amount for both men and women, but only a quarter of the drinking population follows this rule, according to a recent Roy Morgan survey.

"Old advice used to be that women could drink up to two standard drinks per day and men could have up to four per day, provided we all have two alcohol-free days per week," Evangelista says.

The new guidelines recommend no more than two standard drinks per day for both men and women and no longer emphasise alcohol-free days to the same extent.

"It's also not considered healthy to have more than four standard drinks on a single occasion and for women who are pregnant or breastfeeding, abstinence is the safest choice," Evangelista says.

bodyandsoul.com.au

 + We answer four more common health questions at bodyandsoul.com.au

+

Did you know? There is no correlation between cracking your knuckles and developing arthritis or joint inflammation in later life.

Sunday Tasmanian
Sunday 23/10/2011
Page: 33
Section: Body and Soul
Region: Hobart Circulation: 56,297
Type: Capital City Daily
Size: 2,209.93 sq.cms.
Frequency: -----S

Brief: AUSPOOCH
Page 1 of 5

SUNDAY Tasmanian
body+ soul
bodyandsoul.com.au
october 23 2011

WHAT'S YOUR HEALTH
IQ?

*The body basics
smart women
get wrong*

MUMS ON THE RUN
"WE WENT FROM
COUCH POTATOES TO TRIATHLETES"

+ THE NO-SCAR BREAST-REDUCTION SURGERY

TEST YOUR HEALTH IQ

We all think we know the basics of wellbeing, but when was the last time you tested your knowledge? By Charmaine Yabsley

How large should a portion size be?

✦ Australians are a bit clueless on this topic. A recent Choice survey found when it came to breakfast cereals, for example, men pour 49 per cent more and women 26 per cent more than the recommended serving sizes.

"If you want to maintain your current weight, there are two rules for serving sizes," says dietitian Amanda Clark, author of Portion Perfection (Great Ideas in Nutrition) and creator of Portion Perfection plates and bowls. "A serving of meat should be about the size of your hand. Carbohydrate servings should be the size of a tennis ball."

And don't think you can heap

on the vegies either. "This is ideally about two tennis ball sizes," Clark says.

Even when eating healthily, restraint should be shown. "Having too much healthy food, such as muesli, can cause weight gain," she adds.

For women, a serving of muesli should be one third of a cup, but Clark says we tend to overfill large bowls. Invest in a portion plate which guides you to the exact serving sizes required.

How much sleep should you get?

✦ Eight hours is the common answer to this question, though not all of us need this much. And yet, 51 per cent of us say we don't get enough sleep. It seems our sleep needs are as individual as we are.

"Sleep needs varies between individuals just as any other biological characteristic, such as height, weight and eye colour," says Professor Leon Lack of The Sleep Research Laboratory at Flinders University. "Sleep 'need' varies across age from an average of about nine to 10 hours in children and eight to nine in adolescents. As we get older our sleep requirements decline, from needing seven to eight hours in middle age, to just six to seven hours in the older population." However many hours you're getting, it's the quality that's important.

"The first few hours are the most effective at satisfying sleep needs, while the last hour or two are less so," Professor Lack says.

What's the best way to lose weight?

✦ This might depend on whether you're a nutritionist or a personal trainer, but according to the National Health and Medical Research Council both exercise and eating less work. It's finding the balance that's vital.

"The way to lose weight is either to use more energy [calories] each day through physical activity or to reduce your energy [calorie] intake each day by eating less," says dietitian Clare Evangelista. "We get calories from the protein, fat and carbohydrate in our foods, so cutting down on some or all of these is necessary to lose weight. However, fat provides us with the most calories per gram, so is often seen as the most efficient way to cut back on your calorie intake."

Choose reduced-fat dairy products, use only a thin spread of margarine on bread and crackers, trim the fat and skin off meat and chicken and avoid fatty takeaways and other high-fat treats. "We still need to keep small amounts of good unsaturated fats such as vegetable oil, nuts and margarine in our regular diet to keep cholesterol in check."

When's the best time of the month to conceive?

✦ According to a recent Monash University study, only 13 per cent of women know

How much fruit and veg should you eat each day?

Are you grouping vegies and fruit together? The recommended amount is five pieces of veg and two pieces of fruit each day.

"Boost your vegie intake by adding salad to sandwiches, vegetables to your evening meal or including crudites, baked beans, vegetable soup or corn on the cob at snack time," Evangelista says.

the correct answer to this question. "If a woman has a regular 28-day cycle, as 90 per cent of women do, ovulation occurs between day 13 and 14," explains Professor Michael Chapman of the Fertility Society of Australia.

"We recommend having sex on alternate days between day 12 and day 16 of your cycle. Sperm hangs around for 72 hours and an egg is fertilisable for 12 hours, so try to overlap these times. It's more difficult to predict a fertile time if your cycle is more or less than 28 days."

Ovulation kits may be helpful in this case.

What is the maximum amount of alcohol you should drink?

Two is the maximum daily amount for both men and women, but only a quarter of the drinking population follows this rule, according to a recent Roy Morgan survey.

"Old advice used to be that women could drink up to two standard drinks per day and men could have up to four per day, provided we all have two alcohol-free days per week," Evangelista says.

The new guidelines recommend no more than two standard drinks per day for both men and women and no longer emphasise alcohol-free days to the same extent.

"It's also not considered healthy to have more than four standard drinks on a single occasion and for women who are pregnant or breastfeeding, abstinence is the safest choice," Evangelista says.

bodyandsoul.com.au

We answer four more common health questions at bodyandsoul.com.au

Did you know? There is no correlation between cracking your knuckles and developing arthritis or joint inflammation in later life.

PHOTOGRAPHY FOLIO-ID

How much water should you drink?

+ Good news for the three in 10 people who don't drink eight glasses of water a day - that recommendation has now been called into question. According to a study published in the Journal Of The American Society Of Nephrology, the benefits of drinking that much water - better skin, hydration, weight management and detoxification - are unproven, but don't stop drinking your eight glasses just yet. Most experts still recommend drinking plenty of water.

Sunday Times
Sunday 23/10/2011
Page: 1
Section: Body and Soul
Region: Perth Circulation: 283,524
Type: Capital City Daily
Size: 2,362.88 sq.cms.
Frequency: -----S

Brief: AUSPOOCH
Page 1 of 3

The Sunday Times october 23-29 2011
body+ soul
bodyandsoul.com.au

WHAT'S YOUR HEALTH
IQ?

*The body basics
smart women
get wrong*

5
SMALL CHANGES THAT LEAD TO BIG
WEIGHT LOSS

FROM COUCH
POTATOES TO TRIATHLETES

+ THE NO-SCAR BREAST-REDUCTION SURGERY

TEST YOUR HEALTH IQ

We all think we know the basics of wellbeing, but when was the last time you tested your knowledge? By Charmaine Yabsley

How large should a portion size be?

✦ Australians are a bit clueless on this topic. A recent Choice survey found when it came to breakfast cereals, for example, men pour 49 per cent more and women 26 per cent more than the recommended serving sizes. "If you want to maintain your current weight, there are two rules for serving sizes," says dietitian Amanda Clark, author of Portion Perfection (Great Ideas in Nutrition) and creator of Portion Perfection plates and bowls. "A serving of meat should be about the size of your hand. Carbohydrate servings should be the size of a tennis ball."

And don't think you can heap on the vegies either. "This is ideally about two tennis ball sizes," Clark says. Even when eating healthily, restraint should be shown. "Having too much healthy food, such as muesli, can cause weight gain," she adds. For women, a serving of muesli should be one third of a cup, but Clark says we tend to overfill large bowls. Invest in a portion plate which guides you to the exact serving sizes required.

How much sleep should you get?

✦ Eight hours is the common answer to this question, though not all of us need this much. And yet, 51 per cent of us say we don't get enough sleep. It seems our sleep needs are as individual as we are. "Sleep needs varies between individuals just as any other biological characteristic, such as height, weight and eye colour," says Professor Leon Lack of The Sleep Research Laboratory at Flinders University. "Sleep 'need' varies across age from an average of about nine to 10 hours in children and eight to nine in adolescents. As we get older our sleep requirements decline, from needing seven to eight hours in middle age, to just six to seven hours in the older population." However many hours you're getting, it's the quality that's important.

How much water should you drink?

✦ Good news for the three in 10 people who don't drink eight glasses of water a day - that recommendation has now been called into question. According to a study published in the Journal Of The American Society Of Nephrology, the benefits of drinking that much water - better skin, hydration, weight management and detoxification - are unproven, but don't stop drinking your eight glasses just yet. Most experts still recommend drinking plenty of water.

PHOTOGRAPHY FOLIO-ID

"The first few hours are the most effective at satisfying sleep needs, while the last hour or two are less so," Professor Lack says.

What's the best way to lose weight?

+ This might depend on whether you're a nutritionist or a personal trainer, but according to the National Health and Medical Research Council both exercise and eating less work. It's finding the balance that's vital.

"The way to lose weight is either to use more energy [calories] each day through physical activity or to reduce your energy [calorie] intake each day by eating less," says dietitian Clare Evangelista. "We get calories from the protein, fat and carbohydrate in our foods, so cutting down on some or all of these is necessary to lose weight. However, fat provides us with the most calories per gram, so is often seen as the most efficient way to cut back on your calorie intake."

Choose reduced-fat dairy products, use only a thin spread of margarine on bread and crackers, trim the fat and skin off meat and chicken and avoid fatty takeaways and other high-fat treats. "We still need to keep small amounts of good unsaturated fats such as vegetable oil, nuts and margarine in our regular diet to keep cholesterol in check."

When's the best time of the month to conceive?

+ According to a recent Monash University study, only 13 per cent of women know

How much fruit and veg should you eat each day?

+ Are you grouping vegies and fruit together? The recommended amount is five pieces of veg and two pieces of fruit each day.

"Boost your vegie intake by adding salad to sandwiches, vegetables to your evening meal or including crudites, baked beans, vegetable soup or corn on the cob at snack time," Evangelista says.

the correct answer to this question. "If a woman has a regular 28-day cycle, as 90 per cent of women do, ovulation occurs between day 13 and 14," explains Professor Michael Chapman of the Fertility Society of Australia.

"We recommend having sex on alternate days between day 12 and day 16 of your cycle. Sperm hangs around for 72 hours and an egg is fertilisable for 12 hours, so try to overlap these times. It's more difficult to predict a fertile time if your cycle is more or less than 28 days."

Ovulation kits may be helpful in this case.

What is the maximum amount of alcohol you should drink?

+ Two is the maximum daily amount for both men and women, but only a quarter of the drinking population follows this rule, according to a recent Roy Morgan survey.

"Old advice used to be that women could drink up to two standard drinks per day and men could have up to four per day, provided we all have two alcohol-free days per week," Evangelista says.

The new guidelines recommend no more than two standard drinks per day for both men and women and no longer emphasise alcohol-free days to the same extent.

"It's also not considered healthy to have more than four standard drinks on a single occasion and for women who are pregnant or breastfeeding, abstinence is the safest choice," Evangelista says.

bodyandsoul.com.au

+ We answer four more common health questions at bodyandsoul.com.au

Did you know? There is no correlation between cracking your knuckles and developing arthritis or joint inflammation in later life.